About Dale

Dale Losch serves as president of Crossworld, a missions organization whose goal is to send disciple-makers from all professions — spiritually mature vocational and marketplace ministry workers — to launch disciple-making communities in the world's least-reached marketplaces.

Holding degrees from Christian Heritage College and Dallas Theological Seminary, Dale began his work with Crossworld in 1988 as a disciple-maker in France, and has served as Crossworld's president since 2009. He loves to motivate people to use their God-given passions to make disciples wherever life happens.

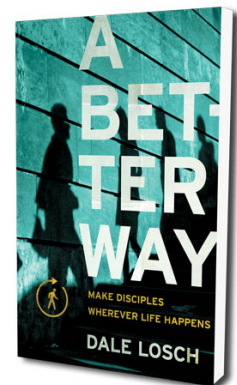

Dale and his wife, Jerusha, have been married for more than 30 years and have four children who are serving God through business, education and physical therapy.

A Better Way

More than a call for a return to the original way of making disciples, this book empowers every believer to engage by imparting God's truth through authentic relationships wherever life happens.

"Dale is a champion when it comes to discipleship, and his heart for the lost beats closely with mine..."

– Luis Palau, Evangelist and Author
